The spring season is one of my favorite times of year. With flowers blooming, trees budding, and new life sprouting, the 380Corridor and the surrounding areas come to life. Additionally, turtles, ducks, birds, and other wildlife are starting to emerge during this time of year. Fortunately, it's very easy to access the copiousness of nature around us. Living in a great area with so many outdoor recreation places nearby, like the gorgeous Lake Lewisville and Lake Ray Roberts, is a blessing.

Hopefully, at this point, 380Guide has become your go-to source for information when organizing activities or events for your loved ones. We hope this issue offers some events and activities you might want to check out in the coming months.

Please remember to support local businesses as they are the first to support charitable causes, educational institutions, and neighborhood associations. As always, we are grateful to our advertisers. Without them, we could not keep our readers up to date on all the local news and events.

May a springtime breeze fill your heart and bring you joy.

Denton ISD, Town of Cross Roads form Partnership

Historic Agreement to Provide Community Enhancements

Denton ISD and the Town of Cross Roads have entered into a partnership that will provide enhancements for the community with the district's addition of its fifth high school and second advanced technology center after more than a year of discussions.

The new high school and advanced technology center will both be located in Cross Roads, creating a partnership believed to be the first of its kind in Texas, in that the district is collaborating with the town to create a community-based concept that supports the Cross Roads Town Vision 2035. A Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) has been approved by both entities that outlines plans to collaborate on these projects. The goal for both entities is to maximize the investment in the new facilities by creating a state-of-the-art high school and CTE that benefits both the students and the surrounding community.

"We understand that school is a key component of a healthy lifestyle," said Dr. Jamie Wilson, Denton ISD Superintendent of Schools. "Work-life balance is paramount, and through this partnership with the Town of Cross Roads, we are excited to work together and provide multiple features that will elevate the community."

As part of the partnership, approximately 32 acres near the southeast corner of US 380 and Naylor Road will be managed through joint ownership between the two entities to be developed as a town center with retail, restaurant and entertainment amenities and a future government center located on 2.5 acres in the middle of the development. This project will provide sales tax revenue to the town and property tax revenue to the school district.

"I am excited to announce this joint partnership that includes significant elements from the Cross Roads Vision 2035 plan adopted in 2021," stated Cross Roads Mayor T. Lynn Tompkins, Jr. "The agreement addresses many of the highest priorities in our vision including ultimate plans for a variety of restaurant and retail uses as well as space for public events and walking trails.

This project will increase our revenue stream to continue to protect our municipal property tax free status."

To enhance this project a new east/west collector road will be constructed utilizing Denton County Road Bond funds approved as part of the TRIP '22 Road Bond election passed in November 2022.

Additionally, this partnership includes opportunities for collaboration on the uses of the Burgoon-Martin Agriculture Science Center at Star Ranch, located off Fishtrap Road in Cross Roads.

In 2023, Denton ISD partnered with Cross Roads to host the first Founder's Day Festival, and in recognition of the Town Vision 2035 Plan, Denton ISD plans to develop a community garden for use when students are not present.

2024 APRIL 8

GREAT NORTH AMERICAN ECLIPSE

Did You Know?

The 2024 eclipse is a total eclipse for those in the path, but the 380 corridor will see a partial eclipse.

On April 8, 2024, the second total solar eclipse in the U.S. in less than seven years will travel up through the country from Texas to Maine. The 2024 eclipse, known as the "Great North American Eclipse," promises to be even more spectacular than the historic 2017 eclipse, crossing over or coming close to more major cities and with a maximum duration of totality that's almost two minutes longer!

The centerline of the eclipse enters Texas, and the U.S., as it crosses the Rio Grande River at the Mexico–U.S. border at approximately 12:10pm CDT, with totality beginning in that location at about 1:27pm CDT.

As it exits Mexico and enters the U.S., traveling through the Texas Hill Country, the eclipse will have already reached its "point of greatest duration," that singular spot along every total solar eclipse centerline where the duration of totality is longer than anywhere else. That point is also the duration of totality "tipping point," meaning that the duration gradually increases along the centerline up until that point and then starts to decrease on the other side. In other words, for the 2024 eclipse, the duration of totality is all downhill in the U.S., with the longest durations in Texas and the shortest in Maine. Therefore, the path of totality in Texas will be considered a prime viewing destination on April 8. And since the point of greatest duration in Mexico is only a little more than 300 miles to the south of where the path of totality enters the U.S., the duration of totality on the centerline will only be a few seconds short of the eclipse maximum of 4 minutes and 28 seconds even a couple of hundred miles north of the border.

If the longest durations of totality in the U.S. wasn't enough, Texas is also widely considered to have the best eclipse-day weather prospects in the country. More specifically, eclipse weather forecasting site eclipsophile.com points out that, in Texas, "the north [or west] side of the track has a notably sunnier April climate than the south [or east]." In general, the farther south you are for this eclipse, the better your weather odds. And you can't get any farther south along the path of totality in the U.S. than Texas.

The centerline of the eclipse exits the state as it crosses the Red River around 3:06pm CDT, with totality coming to an end in that location at about 1:49pm CDT. From the Mexico–Texas border to the Texas–Oklahoma border, the Moon's shadow travels approximately 478 miles along the centerline in 17 minutes and 29 seconds at an average speed of 1,641 miles per hour.

The path of totality will pass through Mexico, Central and Northeastern USA, and the Maritime provinces of Canada.

Quick Tips

Use a clean pot of clay or plastic that is wide and 4 to 6 inches deep with one or more drainage holes in the bottom and a saucer to catch water.

Plant the bulbs in the pot with well-draining potting soil. Do not pack the soil around the bulb as it could damage the bulb and hinder growth.

It is alright to crowd the bulbs in the container. Plant them 1/2 inch apart.

Place your bulb in a location that gets plenty of sun and make sure it is watered regularly. Keep the soil moist but do not overwater as the bulb can develop root rot.

Since the plant will grow to the light make sure to rotate the plant so it grows straight.

You can place moss on top of the pot to help keep in moisture.

Growing Amaryllis, Narcissus, and Hyacinths Indoors

By Sharrie Ely, Master Gardener

It's always lovely to have beautiful flowers. Even now it's not too late to consider "forcing" bulbs to enjoy indoor blooms.

If you are sensitive to fragrance, then grow amaryllis as they have no scent. For fragrant indoor flowers, you can grow paperwhites (a type of narcissus). Hyacinths are another bulb you can grow for great fragrance, but they will take more prep than narcissus and amaryllis.

If you would like to grow amaryllis or paperwhites, "forcing" is not necessary as these bulbs do not need to be chilled. Plant them now, in a container with soil. The container may or may not have a drain hole which is just fine for bulbs. Without a drain hole, your bulbs won't need as much water. Place the planted bulbs in bright, indirect light.

When selecting amaryllis bulbs select larger bulbs. The larger bulb size will have more stored energy and you will see this in the bloom results. Larger bulbs will also typically produce stronger stems. Check that the bulb is clean and free of mold, decay, or cuts and is firm.

One variety of narcissus bulb, 'Ziva' is known to be divisive. Around 50 percent of people enjoy the scent while 50 percent do not. If you do not care for the fragrance of 'Ziva', then experiment and try other narcissus, like 'Avalanche', 'Grand Soleil d'Or', 'Winter Sun', or 'Ariel'.

Top the soil of your plantings with colored glass, rocks, moss, grit, or fine gravel. When planting the taller-growing amaryllis and narcissus, use a stake for your plant. Use a dowel rod painted dark green or even an interesting stick that you have found in your yard. Decorative stakes can also be purchased online in garden stores or large retail sites. Tie the plant to your stake with a pretty ribbon, twine, or coated wire.

Hyacinths are fun to grow but need a chilling period to grow indoors. Refrigerate these bulbs for 12 weeks in a paper bag, away from apples, pears, and bananas and then pot in soil or in a hyacinth vase with water. The water should be below the bulb, not touching the root. Handle hyacinth bulbs with gloves as they contain calcium oxalate which is a skin irritant. Do not touch your face after handling hyacinth bulbs as it can cause a burning or stinging sensation.

If you are shopping for bulbs online, popular colors may be sold out. Look for bargains online and check out Box DIY Stores for markdowns on bulbs as stores may be getting ready for the spring season. Next year, shop early for your bulbs. Make a note in your phone or on your calendar to shop for the best bulb selection in August. Some sources for bulbs are Brent and Becky's Bulbs, John Scheepers, or Van Engelen, Inc. Buy several and share with friends or make plans to share as gifts.

Happy Gardening!
